

THEY WORKED AT BROWNLOW HILL

Compiled by Brian Burnett 2015

Brownlow Hill is a rare, substantially intact colonial farming estate with an outstanding scenic landscape setting with many rare surviving early colonial structures and features. It has one of the most prominent colonial gardens and estates in Australia with the extent of its considerable acreage and pattern of farming largely intact. Brownlow Hill contains a designed landscape of national importance and renown which includes ground modeling, layout and plantings from the pre-1860s. The homestead layout and farm was established by Alexander Macleay, first Colonial Secretary of NSW and his sons George and to a lesser extent James Macleay. The site has association with government stations initiated by Macquarie. Brownlow Hill has had continuous family occupation (the Downes family) since 1859 and ownership since 1875. The site is considerably intact with a network of 19th century dwellings of a successful farm which are still in operation. Brownlow Hill is firmly placed in the consciousness of the community as one of the most evocative early European estates (colonial house, garden, landscape setting) in NSW. It has been romanticized by the well known architect, author, artist and gardener, W. Hardy Wilson (1881 - 1955). (National Trust of Australia, Colonial Landscapes of the Cumberland Plain and Camden. 2000)

A remarkable survival of a sophisticated colonial garden of the 1830's owned by, and probably designed by, a family notable both in colonial politics and society and internationally in the field of horticulture. (Survey of Gardens in New South Wales - National Trust of Australia, 1981)

Description

Designer/Maker:	Homestead layout and farm established by Alexander Macleay, first Colonial Secretary of NSW
Builder/Maker:	George Macleay (Alexander Macleay's son)
Construction years:	1827-

Physical condition and/or Archaeological potential: The site has high archaeological potential. Much of the colonial landscape and garden is still evident. Sub-surface remnants of previous agricultural structures and/or associated artefacts may still be within the boundaries of the original allotments.

Flaggy Creek Quarry site:

About 100 metres south of the Round House is a quarry in the Flaggy Creek bed, a tributary of the Mount Hunter Rivulet. The quarry was a source of Wiannamatta stone (advertised in the press of the 1820s - '30s as Cowpastures stone), a highly-figured mudstone used for paving (i.e. flagstones) at Brownlow Hill (the console table base, veranda and entrance hall flagging) and Elizabeth Bay House (the entrance hall and flagging, saloon stair and upper floor chimneypieces). The Camden Park portico columns are reputedly from this quarry. The quarry provides a rare instance of a surviving connection between early houses and the source of their materials and is an important archaeological site (Carlin, 2008).

House Modification:

The house at Brownlow Hill was originally built as two small separate wings of brick at right angles to one another, with a separate kitchen at the rear making up the third side of the Courtyard. By 1834 alterations were made transforming the house which was "now pronounced the best in the Colony." The two small wings were joined, forming an L shaped building. The original roof endings are still to be seen beneath the present roof. Within the angles another section was then added to the east wing. On the right of the north elevation is a wing which was added by Jeremiah Downes, who bought the property in 1875. At that time the front door was replaced and a small portico built before it. A cellar is approached from the rear. In the 1890s a portico-ed entry way to the front door, and new Victorian front door, was added, along with a new wing to the west of the original house. John & Joan Downes made significant modifications in c.1961, installing two internal bathrooms in the eastern wing, a corridor connecting the entry hall with the eastern wing rooms leading to a relocated entry door, moved to be centrally placed on the eastern wing. An internal kitchen was also provided within the central wing of the house, including the removal of an internal wall between a former bedroom and scullery.

Landscape Modification

In the 1850s the property was leased for pig raising when much damage was done to the surrounding growth. In 1859, the property was leased by Jeremiah Downes. Brownlow Hill was sold to Severin K Salting and in 1862 was again leased to Downes who purchased the property from Salting in 1875. In the intervening period it was managed as a series of tenant farms

In the 1960s, a quarry was established on the western extremity on the property with minimal impact on the working farm.

Further information:

The general layout is well maintained but individual items and some overgrown areas need attention. The aviary is in urgent need of restoration. The outer garden, lane/ Loop Road and hedgerows are in need of some weed management, to retain significant views and vistas, and control spread, particularly of African olives and privet. The olives in particular are invasive as scrub elsewhere on the farm, although this is under management. The pond/dam wall is in need of repair and some reconstruction, to prevent further cracking and slumping.

Current use: dairy farm and residence

Former use: working farm and residence

He married Elizabeth Gummer 15 Mar 1855 Kingsbury, Somerset, England, daughter of Phillip Gummer and Hannah Unknown. She was born 1833 Kingsbury, Somerset, England, and died 31 May 1909 Orangeville, NSW. Notes for William Duck: William Duck and Elizabeth Gummer were married at Kingsbury Somerset before leaving for Australia 1855. They travelled on the "Gilmore" and arrived October of that year. William first worked for Alexander McLeay at Brownlow Hill. He took up land on Bobs Range 1860, Portions 42 and 43. William had a mixed farm and did fencing the district and he later bought adjoining properties. In the landholders' returns of 1883 for the district of Picton he owned two hundred and seven acres, eight horses, ten head of cattle and eighteen pigs. William and Elizabeth's four sons were George, William, John and Charles. Their only daughter was Sarah who married

Jess Stuckey and worked at Gledswood. John was a schoolteacher at Pumpkin Hills near Lakesland. William was a butcher and moved to Junee. George Duck, the eldest son, remained on the property at Bobs Range. The property was later named "East View". George married Isabella Rapley 1879 Isabella was the daughter of Thomas and Eliza Rapley, who lived at Werombi. George and William planted an orchard and bought more land. George and Isabella had five children:- Fred, Herbert, Eliza, Spencer and Hazel. Herb and Spencer Duck grew large areas of winter peas on the hills and slopes of their farms. East View remained the Duck family until it was sold the 1940s and Herb retired to live at Elderslie. Elizabeth Duck died 1909, aged seventy-seven years. William Duck died 1917, aged eighty-one years. They are buried at Glenmore. William's youngest son, Charles, bought Portion 30 and 31 at Orangeville. He was the first person Orangeville to plant Valencia oranges 1905. He also grew peaches, apples and vegetables. The fruit was taken to Camden Railway Station by horse and wagon, empty fruit cases constituted the back load to Orangeville. The Uniting Church (formerly Methodist) was built on land given by Charles Duck. Charles married Maude Kiss whose sister was the wife of William Duck junior of Junee. During World War One, Charles bought Portions 24 and 25 from Wheelers at Werombi. The price paid was thirty-seven shillings and six pence per acre. Some of Portion 24, which belonged to Dunbars, was bought for six pounds per acre. Orchards were planted on the section fronting Silverdale Road. The remainder of the land had a good stand of bush. A windbreak of pines sheltered the orchards, which were mainly citrus. They were well-kept orchards and a pretty sight from Silverdale Road. Charles loved his garden and grew many roses. It is now looked after by his daughter- -law Alice Duck and still has lots of roses, which are a blaze of colour the spring and summer. Before the days of common use of motor cars the Duck family used to go for picnic driving horse and sulkies. Other neighbours would go too. As most of the families were large there would be quite a procession of horse drawn vehicles. Charles Duck died 1962 and is buried at The Oaks. There are still many of his descendants living at Orangeville/Werombi today. Charles and Maude Duck had eight children. Barney and Jim Ducks' orchards were on Portions 24 and 25 at Werombi. Lloyd Ducks' home and orchard was on Portions 30 and 31 at Orangeville. Charles Duck bought these portions the late 1800s. He married (1) Lucy Brown 1836 Windsor, NSW, daughter of Daniel Brown and Mary Potter. She was born 16 May 1814 Cornwallis, NSW, and died 08 Nov 1876 Windsor, NSW. He married (2) Mary Ann Lucas 11 Jul 1849 West Maitland, NSW, daughter of Richard Lucas and Charlotte. She was born 1827 Gunville, Dorset, England, and died 31 Aug 1863 The Oaks, NSW. Notes for William Norris: About 1836, William Norris formed a marriage with Lucy Upton, nee Brown (his brother James was married to Lucy's sister). In subsequent years before William's early death, William and Lucy had five children baptised at Windsor R/C. From Lucy's earlier marriage (aged 13, to Jesse Upton) she had three children. Apparently William and Lucy never legally married, as Lucy is buried under the name Upton Windsor C/E near her son, Henry Norris.

A Sydney Morning Herald report of 20th December 1842 on the Windsor Court of Petty Sessions read: A most savage assault was committed on Friday night, on William Norris, a settler of Cornwallis, which may be attended with a fatal result. He was attacked on the government reserve there, and his head has been battered to such an extent as to place his life the greatest jeopardy. Shortly after the outrage, Norris was carried into Mr Fisher's Commercial Hotel where every attention was paid to him. Dr. White, accompanied by Dr. Stewart, shortly afterwards attended him, when the former extracted 4 pieces of bone which were pressing on the brain, he having been wounded two parts of the skull, both before and behind. It is supposed that the injuries were inflicted with a heavy batten, which was produced Court today, Saturday when two men of the names of Punch and O'Byrne were brought before the bench on suspicion of being the guilty parties and were remanded until it was ascertained whether the man would live or die. Dr. White is still doubt as to Norris ultimate recovery.

A later newspaper reported that the two men were John Punch, who received a 2 year sentence, and Loughlin O'Byrne, who received 18 months. William subsequently died on 25th September 1843 and the verdict of the inquest was that he died from effects of injuries inflicted by John Punch. The death is mentioned the Windsor Express and Richmond Advertiser of 23rd November 1843, and the Morning Chronicle of 24th January 1844 reported the second court case when the two men were convicted of killing and slaying one William Norris and received the very light sentence of 16 months hard labour from that date. William's headstone bears the following verse: A faithful friend and father dear The loss of him we do sustain. More About William Norris: Arrived: 08 Jun 1849, Emigrant. FATAL ACCIDENT

On Saturday evening as Mr. & Mrs. Denis Reilly of Glenlogan were proceeding homewards from town a spring cart the horse became unmanageable and running the vehicle against a fence effected its complete overturn. Mrs. Reilly escaped with a fractured collarbone and severe injuries to the hand, but Mr. Reilly unfortunately fell beneath the vehicle, the side rail of which came with very great force across his loins. Dr. Bartlett was prompt attendance on the sufferers and did all that skill could dictate to alleviate their suffering, but from the first he held out no hopes of Mr. Reilly's recovery, whose internal injuries were of a very serious nature. The injured man, however,, lingered on dreadful agony until 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning when death released him from further suffering. Very great sympathy is felt the district for the grief stricken family their hour of trial and affliction. Mrs. Reilly we are happy to state is progressing towards recovery. SMALL Henry born 30 Apr 1799 Brede, Sussex, England. He immigrated 7 Aug 1841 on the China He died Senile Dacay on 3 Dec 1885 at the age of 86 Theresa Park, NSW. Henry was buried on 5 Dec 1885 at Uniting Churchyard Cawdor, NSW. He was a Groom, Butcher, Dairy Farmer. He immigrated as a Free Person On a few farms it must have been impossible for all the people to live together in the same building, even those who were relations. Here the evidence points to small communities of families under different roofs, bound by kinship and shared labour. Henry Small took up a lease on Glendaruel, Brownlow Hill in 1849, bring with him a wife, eight sons and two daughters. His farm was one of the biggest on the estate and he stocked it with dairy cattle. In 1855 he was called a substantial farmer with an extensive dairy and several sons to whom he entrusts the management of his stock. By 1859 four of his sons and both daughters were married and all but a son and a daughter lived near their father, presumably on his farm. This adds up to five couples, all with children. The missing son, James Small, seems to have spent five years with his wife's family at Cawdor, on Camden Park, but in 1859 he returned to a farm of his own on Brownlow Hill, the only one of the boys to have an independent lease. There was a dairy at Brownlow Hill, apparently set up by old Alexander Macleay, who lived there in the late 1840s. Henry Small and his sons, also at Brownlow Hill, they probably took over Macleay's herd, were the only tenants in the district with a dairy.
